Steps to Superintendent

The Superintendent position is one of the most crucial roles on each and every construction project. A successful project is dependent on the skills and capabilities of this leader. At Building Crafts, there are multiple paths to become a Superintendent. BCI has had successful Superintendents come from obtaining a college degree and also from working their way up through the field ranks out of high school. Both are vital to the company. Below demonstrates the two main paths to becoming a Superintendent.

Why choose a career at Building Crafts?

Building Crafts believes training and promoting from within provides employees best suited for their future careers. We have a dedicated career path for Superintendents that enables employees to be promoted through the trades or through our Project Engineer training program.
